

ABSTRACT

A lithographic projection apparatus includes conduits which supply utilities to components in a vacuum chamber such as object tables and/or associated motors and/or sensors. The conduits are shielded from exposure to the vacuum by conduit conduits having at least the same number of degrees of freedom as their associated object table.